Court of Inquiry Sifting Minute Particles of Evidence.

THE DAILY GRIND OF TESTIMONY.

Little of Vital Importance Added to Previous Disclosures—Court Took a Recess Afternoon on Account of Funeral of Judge Wilson.

Washington, Sept. 26.—The Schley court of inquiry began its session Thursday with the intention of holding one sitting, having decided to forego the afternoon session in order to permit the members of the court and counsel to attend the funeral of Judge Wilson. Counsel for the navy department continued the effort to show that Admiral Schley had information of the presence of Admiral Cervera and his fleet in the harbor at Santiago.

Captain Wise, who commanded the scout ship Yale during the Spanish war, continued his narrative of the retrograde movement of the flying squadron toward Key West May 27. He first told of how the Yale had taken the Merrimac in tow under direction of Admiral Schley. He said the admiral had signalled upon starting to ask if there was coal enough to carry him to Key West to which he had responded in the affirmative. The next day he had reported in response to an inquiry that he had coal sufficient for two days of full steaming and four days of moderate steaming. He was then dispatched to Newport News, reporting to Admiral Sampson on the way. He had told Admiral Sampson, he said, that the flying squadron was about 30 miles west of Santiago. In response to a question of the admiral he had said he did not know what it was doing there. In detailing the trip westward toward Key West the witness told of the breaking of the Yale's hawser on the Merrimac. He said this had caused delay.

"What was the difficulty?" asked Captain Lemly. "Improper securing of hawser on the Merrimac."

"Was it due to the tempestuous weather or not?" "Not at all."

Mr. Hanna read the following extract from Admiral Schley's report Feb. 1, to the committee on naval affairs in reference to the letter of the secretary of the navy, beginning:

"After having been informed by the scouts commanded by such officers as Sigbee, Jewell and Wise that although they had all been off Santiago de Cuba for a week they had seen nothing of it (the Spanish fleet) and knew nothing of its movements or its whereabouts," etc., Mr. Hanna asked Captain Wise if he had made such communication to the admiral. "I did not," was the response.

"Did you give Admiral Schley any information respecting the Spanish squadron?" "Only through Captain Sigbee," was the response. "I did not go aboard the Brooklyn at all. I gave Captain Sigbee all the information I had."

"Had you been off Santiago for a week?" "I was there from the morning of May 22 until the evening of May 26, when the flying squadron arrived."

Captain Wise was cross-examined on this point by Mr. Rayner. He asked: "From the morning of May 22 until the arrival of the flying squadron the evening of May 24 you were trying to get in touch with the enemy and watching the harbor?" "Yes."

"You saw nothing in there?" "I could not see any harbor at all."

"You could see around the corner of Cay Smith?" "We saw the masts of a small vessel. Could not distinguish what it was."

"You sent no one on shore to try and establish communication?" "Not at all."

"Isn't the natural condition of the harbor such that it is impossible to see considerably up the harbor?" "You can only see a short distance up the harbor."

"And there was nothing in sight whatever was there?" "Nothing at all." The witness had said that Captain Sigbee had taken the dispatch beginning "Get in touch with the enemy." The court, through Admiral Dewey, asked: "Was it your duty or Captain Sigbee's to convey the information in the dispatch received to Commodore Schley?" "I think it was Captain Sigbee's, as he went immediately on duty and I was intercepted by orders from the commodore to take the Merrimac in tow."

Mr. Hanna: "Did you receive any inquiry or did the commanding officer of the flying squadron ask you for any information at any time?" "Nothing."

Mr. Rayner continued his questions, devoting himself especially to the signalling between the yacht and the flagship. The witness said he was sure that May 26, when he hailed the Texas he had not passed within hailing distance of the Brooklyn, being one and a half miles distant.

Mr. Rayner read from a report made May 30 by Admiral Sampson, in which he stated that Captain Wise had told him he believed Santiago harbor to be strongly fortified. "Is this true?" Mr. Rayner asked. "It is," was the reply.

Captain Wise said in reply to questions by Captain Parker that at any time, when off Santiago, he would have been able to signal any information he might have had in regard to the situation. He had seen the masts of a vessel, and thought it to be a small military vessel. He had gone near enough to observe the land batteries.

In reply to an inquiry from the court the witness said the land batteries did not fire upon the Yale while that vessel was reconnoitering the harbor. He also said that even though he had been the senior officer, while off Santiago, prior to the arrival of Captain Cotton, he had not commanded Captain Sigbee to give Commodore Schley the information which he (Wise) had given to Sigbee.

At this point Captain Wise was excused and Admiral Cotton was recalled to make verbal corrections in the testimony previously given by him.

Admiral Cotton was questioned concerning some points of the Santiago campaign. He said that the morning of May 31, after arriving from Kingston, he had gone aboard the Brooklyn with dispatches for Admiral Schley.

Asked by Captain Lemly to relate his conversation with Admiral Schley during that visit, he said:

"He informed me that it had been ascertained that some at least of the ships of Admiral Cervera's squadron were within the harbor of Santiago; that they had been seen and were in sight at the entrance of the harbor. In language as nearly as I can remember he said: 'After dinner I am going to hoist my flag on board the Massachusetts and take her and the Iowa and go in and have a pot shot at those fellows.'"

By Mr. Lemly—"Anything further?" "There was, of course, some further conversation. I can not recall the words nor, aside from what I have mentioned, the particular subjects."

William C. Gray, who was chief machinist on the Texas during the battle off Santiago, July 3, testified that he was on duty that day at the throttle of the starboard engine of the battleship. He said that when he went to the engine-room the vessel was going ahead.

"The next signal," he said, "was to stop, and a minute afterward to reverse; the engines were then reversed. The witness said that the reversal was very brief, the revolutions not exceeding 100 and the time being short. He had, he said, heard afterward that the reversal was because they were passing the Brooklyn."

Lieutenant Spencer S. Wood, who commanded the dispatch boat Dupont during the Spanish war, was the next witness. Lieutenant Wood related the particulars of his mission as a dispatch carrier from Admiral Sampson, lying at Key West to Admiral Schley, who was off Cienfuegos. He left Key West May 20, carrying dispatches, of which the Iowa carried duplicates, and had reached Cienfuegos several hours in advance of the Iowa. "On my arrival," witness said, "I went aboard and personally delivered the dispatches which I carried from Admiral Sampson to Admiral Schley in his cabin at 9 o'clock. He asked me Admiral Sampson's idea about where the Spanish squadron was. I told him I did not know. He asked me of Admiral Sampson's intentions. I told him I did not know them. He told me he thought the Spanish squadron was there; he had heard firing and was almost convinced that they were there. The conversation was on the line to endeavor to find from me what Admiral Sampson's plans were. I could give him no information."

"How long were you on board the flagship?" "Until just before luncheon."

"Have you anything further to state with respect to this interview which will bear upon the subject of this issue about giving me coal. He did not think he could spare coal at first. I said it was absolutely necessary; that we were almost out of coal, having made the run from Key West. He said: 'Very well; go below and I will think it over.' I went below to the wardroom, and was afterward called up and informed that they would give me coal. I had never before met the admiral. He impressed me as being very nervous. He would get up and walk around, come back and sit down, and a number of questions he asked me about Admiral Sampson's intentions I was unable to answer."

"If I understand you clearly, you had no knowledge of the contents of the dispatches which you delivered?" "Admiral Sampson did not tell me what was in them. He simply told me these were duplicate dispatches he was sending by the Iowa. These duplicates, he said, he gave me because he thought the Dupont could make better speed. I left after the Iowa, passed her off Cape San Antonio and arrived in Cienfuegos three or four hours before she did."

"During this interview in which you made some statements with respect to the admiral's manner, had he read the dispatches? Did he read them in your presence?" "Oh, yes."

"Did he advise you of their contents then?" "He did not tell me positively what they were. I gathered while I was aboard the flagship what they contained, but whether it was while I was in the cabin or later in the wardroom I do not know. I never saw their contents and Admiral Sampson never told me what they were."

"I wish to ascertain exactly the particulars of this interview." "All the dispatches seemed to be of an important character judging from the admiral's manner upon receiving them. As I stated he was very nervous."

Asked by Mr. Rayner if Admiral Sampson or any one else had informed him before he left Key West for Cienfuegos that a code of signals had been agreed upon between the American forces and the Cuban insurgents, Lieutenant Wood replied in the negative. He had not, he said, received such information officially, but he added that it was current talk at Key West that the Marblehead, during a previous trip, had established communication with the Cubans. If, however, a code had been arranged he did not know of the fact.

Before Lieutenant Wood had concluded his testimony the court, at 12:45, adjourned for the day to permit attendance at Judge Wilson's funeral.

IT WAS A FLUKE.

Dead Calm Overtook the Yachts on Homeward Course.

New York, Sept. 26.—In the first race between the Columbia and Shamrock II. for the America's cup, the Columbia crossed the starting line at 11:10:49 and the Shamrock at 11:11:01, official time. The cruise was 15 miles to windward and return, starting from Sandy Hook lightship, running to a point off Long Island shore. The Columbia turned the stake at 3:05:32 and the Shamrock at 3:12:47, official time. At 3:37 the boats were making good time with prospects of finishing within the time limit, but at 3:59 the wind dropped. The Columbia was a mile in the lead and gaining steadily. At 4:28 it was almost dead calm and the sails on both yachts were flapping. At 4:29 the excursion fleet headed for the city leaving the yachts becalmed. At 4:40 the time limit expired with the Columbia two miles from the finish. The signal of "no race" was displayed from the judges' boat and both racers took in their sails and were towed to their anchorages.

President's Son Had an Accident.

New York, Sept. 26.—While going in a carriage to visit some friends just before leaving this city, Theodore Roosevelt, jr., was in an accident. The carriage had a driver and with young Roosevelt was a colored servant. The reins of the off-horse broke and the driver was unable to control the pair of bays. The horses swerved into the street car tracks on Lexington avenue and an electric car struck one of the horses. The occupants of the carriage, however, escaped injury.

Troops on Guard.

Madisonville, Ky., Sept. 26.—The Bowling Green and Owensboro state guards have arrived here. The Reinecke mines resumed operations with a full force and there is no sign of interference by the strikers. The presence of troops is the only appearance of threatening trouble. No definite plans for permanently settling the trouble have been determined.

Price of Macaroni Raised.

St. Louis, Sept. 26.—At a meeting of representative macaroni manufacturers of the United States held here the wholesale price of that article and kindred relishes, was advanced a half cent per pound. In the future retailers will pay 6 cents flat instead of 5½ cents per pound. The price is advanced because of the enormous demand.

Belgian Coal Miners Strike.

Liege, Belgium, Sept. 26.—At a number of meetings held here the coal miners resolved to declare a general strike in the Liege coal basin.

CZOLGOSZ SENTENCED

He Is to Be Executed in the Week Beginning Oct. 28.

EARLIEST DATE PERMITTED BY LAW.

Assassin Received The Announcement of His Doom With Indifference. Again Declares He Was Alone in His Crime.

Buffalo, Sept. 26.—The police arrangements at the city hall where Leon F. Czolgosz received his sentence for the murder of President McKinley, were even more stringent than during the trial of the assassin. Half an hour before the time announced for the opening, the court room was filled and the doors were locked. About 25 of the 150 spectators were women.

At 2:05 the prisoner was brought into court. The crowd sought to surge about him and it was with difficulty that the tipstaves cleared a channel down the aisle to the prisoner's seat. Czolgosz was perspiring and seemed nervous, though he did not tremble and his gait was steady. As Czolgosz took his seat he mopped his brow with his handkerchief. When he settled back in his chair, his wonted listless attitude was absent. He kept his eyes wide open and looked about him occasionally, but presently he dropped his eyes to the table ahead of him and assumed his former listless air. The strain on him was intense, evidently, as was attested by a few sighs and a heaving of the chest.

Justice White took his seat on the bench and the crier announced the opening of court. District Attorney Thomas Penney said to the prisoner, "Czolgosz, stand up." He arose.

"What is your name?" asked Mr. Penney. "Leon F. Czolgosz." Replying to the usual questions the prisoner said he was 28 years old; born in Detroit; lived in Cleveland when arrested; occupation iron worker; single.

When asked: "What degree of education have you received?" there was no reply.

"What schools have you attended?" "Public and church schools."

"Are you temperate or intemperate?" "Temperate."

"Have you ever before been convicted of any crime?" "No."

"Are your father and mother alive?" "My father is alive. My mother is dead."

Czolgosz's replies were so low that he could be heard but a few feet away.

"Have you any legal excuse why sentence should not be pronounced against you?" Czolgosz could not, or pretended he could not hear the question put by the clerk. It was repeated to him twice, and then he said something in an inaudible tone. The judge intervened and explained what was meant by the question. "First you may claim you are insane. Next is, have you good cause to offer against sentence being pronounced against you?" The judge also stated legal reasons the prisoner might have against sentence being pronounced. "I have nothing to say about that," was the reply.

Judge Titus asked that the prisoner be allowed to say something in exculpation of his crime. The prisoner began to speak. His voice was so low he could scarcely be heard. Judge Titus was obliged to repeat it sentence by sentence, so that the court might hear. "I have nothing to say," whispered Czolgosz to his counsel.

Judge Titus then said: "I think he ought to be permitted to make a statement exculpating his family." Turning to the prisoner again, Judge Titus held a brief conference. Turning to the court, counsel for the defendant said: "He said no other person had anything to do with it; that no other person knew of its commission but himself. His father or mother or no one else knew anything about it."

Then the prisoner closed his lips, stared straight ahead of him and awaited the court's pronouncement of his doom. The sentence was brief.

"Czolgosz," said the court "you have committed a grave crime against the state and our nation in the assassination of our beloved president. After learning all the facts and circumstances in the case 12 good men have pronounced you guilty of murder in the first degree. You say that no other person abetted you in the commission of this terrible act. The penalty is fixed by statute, and it becomes my duty to impose sentence upon you. The sentence of this court is that in the week beginning Oct. 28, at the place designated and in the manner prescribed by law, you suffer the punishment of death."

Czolgosz stood erect, looking straight at the judge. He did not tremble, not a muscle quivered. As soon as the death sentence was finished he took his seat in the same indifferent manner that has characterized him throughout the trial. He was brought to his feet quickly by the officers at 2:30. They shackled him and led him away to the jail while the crowd surged after the officers.

According to the law of this state, Oct. 28 is the earliest date that could be fixed for the execution of Czolgosz.

Sheriff Caldwell says no one except himself shall know when he will remove Czolgosz to Auburn to await execution; that not even the necessary guards will know until they are summoned the moment they are needed.

GAS EXPLODED.

Lives of Eight Men Employed at Gas Works Suddenly Snuffed Out.

New York, Sept. 26.—Eight men were killed and seven seriously injured in an explosion at the works of the Essex and Hudson Gas company at Newark, N. J. The foreman of the works, Newman Otto, and two workmen named Meyers and Kesch were cleaning the inside of a tank when they were overcome by gas. Rescuers were called for and nine men volunteered. All were overcome by gas while engaged in removing a plate from the tank to get the three unconscious men out. A spark ignited the gas and an explosion followed. The explosion was followed by a fire and the flames spread rapidly.

Conscience Contribution.

Washington, Sept. 26.—Secretary Gage received in an envelope post marked New York, Sept. 25, 1901, $6,050 in bills of denominations ranging from $50 to $500. This sum was accompanied only by the statement: "After much thought, I am convinced that the duties were not fully paid as desired, difference estimated at about two per cent. The wish now is to rectify what was done during some years ago and amount is being sent and it felt must be paid to United States treasury to discharge their duties and to do right. Above has been great grief." No name was signed to this communication.

McKinley Monument Association.

Canton, O., Sept. 26.—Judge William R. Day and others of the funeral committee have taken steps looking to a permanent monument organization. Papers were drawn for incorporation under the laws of Ohio of the National McKinley Memorial association. It is to be made national in scope and personnel, and its purpose is to construct a memorial monument in Westlaw cemetery, where the late president was buried. The plan is to have the whole country unite in defraying the cost of this tribute, making it a popular move, rather than to secure large appropriations or contributions in any one quarter. Many assurances of assistance have already been received.

"THE FRUITS OF THEM THAT SLEPT."

A Smithsonian savant, now resident at Chillicothe, Ohio, publishes in a newspaper of that fine old pioneer town, a very interesting and notably original theory of "heredity." The author is an archæologist of the first rank, but there is certainly nothing archaic in this philosophical skit. It is apparently brand-new. At least we have never encountered anything precisely like it.

He suggests that when human bodies undergo disintegration by decay, there is a sort of transmigration by which the soul of things good and evil passes into the growing food-stuffs of earth, and thence into the bodies, which are nourished from these strangely impregnated fruits of the soil. We are glad to welcome this novel and suggestive theory and we are proud to claim the author as a native of this county. He has probably builded better than he knew in that his theory furnishes strong confirmation of the popular European hypothesis that the white man in America is gradually lapsing into a savage or aboriginal type. One shudders to think of what is in store for the man of the future.

"Ill fares the land to hastening ills a prey,
Where wealth accumulates and men decay."

FEDERAL APPOINTMENTS.

Newspaper Speculation as To President Roosevelt's Policy—Belief That Changes Will Be Sparingly Made.

[Henry Hall in Pittsburgh Times.]
WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—Among the important matters which will come before President Roosevelt is the filling of many Federal offices, the terms of whose present occupants, appointed originally by President McKinley for years ago have already expired or will soon expire. In most cases reappointments are expected, but, as might be looked for, there are in many instances other applicants, as well as opposition to reappointments for alleged cause, and the President will doubtless find his task in the matter a rather difficult one.

Of course circumstances will figure largely in some cases, but the President's well known adherence to the doctrine of civil service reform, of which he has for years been one of the leading exponents, is regarded as grounds for the belief that changes will be very sparingly made. His record on the question has been such that few believe that he will depart from it at the mere desires of political leaders or, much less, in the hope of political advantage to himself in the future.

No doubt, in the case of those whom it was definitely known President McKinley would reappoint, the President will carry out the purposes of his predecessor. In others it is the general opinion that where officials have shown themselves competent and capable they will be retained.

A Night of Terror.

"Awful anxiety was felt for the widow of the brave General Burnham, of Machias, Me., when the doctors said she would die from pneumonia before morning," writes Mrs. S. H. Lincoln, who attended her that fearful night, but she begged for Dr. King's New Discovery, which had more than once saved her life, and cured her of consumption. After taking, she slept all night. Further use entirely cured her." This marvelous medicine is guaranteed to cure all throat, chest and lung diseases. Only 50c. and $1. Trial bottles free at J. Jas. Wood & Son's drug store.

ASKS FOR INVESTIGATION.

Rev. D. P. Holt, Formerly of This City, Demands an Inquiry Into Rumors Affecting His Conduct as a Minister.

ASHLAND, Ky., September 26.—At the M. E. conference this morning Rev. D. P. Holt, of Dayton, demanded an inquiry into certain floating rumors concerning his conduct. Mr. Holt has repeatedly demanded of his Presiding Elder, Rev. E. L. Shepherd, of Covington, to make an investigation, but he has not done so, and this morning, when Mr. Holt's name was called, the above demand was made by him in open conference.

"For some months," says the Times-Star, "there have been rumors of questionable conduct on the part of Rev. Holt. The rumors threatened to disintegrate the congregation of the Tower Chapel, M. E. Church, of Dayton, of which Rev. Holt is pastor. Several members have withdrawn from the church and others have been firm in the belief that the reports were false and remained steadfast and true to the pastor. Some months ago Rev. Holt demanded an investigation of the reports and it was given him by the Board of Deacons and resulted in a complete vindication. After that came the withdrawals from the church and for some time the reports were lessened. Recently they have been revived, it being claimed that the pastor exceeded his duties and invited criticism by his conduct at a camp meeting. The outcome of the demand for an investigation will be watched with interest by the residents of Dayton."

The Howard-Dorset Co.

It is not often that a Maysville audience has such an opportunity for enjoying a real theatrical treat as that afforded last evening by the initial performance of the Howard-Dorset Co.'s engagement in this city. The seating capacity of the opera house was taxed to the utmost, and the frequent, almost vociferous applause, continued with but small interruption throughout the entire evening, testified in a most satisfactory manner to the appreciation with which the efforts of the entire company were received.

Mr. Howard and Miss Dorset are the same inimitable duo as on former occasions, and last night they established themselves more firmly than ever in the good graces of all present. The specialties are exceptionally good, of a sort not often seen with a repertoire company. A change of bill in this respect is assured with each performance.

To-night will be offered "The Princess of Patches," a strong comedy-drama—one of the very best in the repertoire of the company. Prices 10, 20, 30 cents.

Don't forget the grand family matinee Saturday afternoon. Adults 20 cents, children 10 cents to any part of the house. No reserved seats.

Baylor Spratt, chief engineer of the steamer Sunshine, had his license suspended this week while up the river, and was taken to Cincinnati under arrest by Deputy United States Marshal W. J. HIGHWAYMAN HUNG UP

He Was a Bad Man From the Ba Kans and He Came to Grief.

LAST OF A BOLD GANG OF BANDITS.

Killed the Man They Tried to Rob. Two Shot in Their Tracks, Another Hanged Himself in His Cell. Gibbet Ends the Tragedy.

Greensburg, Pa., Sept. 26.—Vassel Laketch was hanged in the jailyard in the presence of about 400 people. Death resulted from strangulation in 11 minutes.

The crime for which Laketch was hanged was committed Oct. 30, 1900. Paymaster Wilfred Hassler of the Southwest Coke company and his colored driver, Harry Burgess, were driving to Moorewood with $5000 to pay off the coke workers when they were held up by Laketch and three companions, all foreigners. In the ensuing fight, Hassler and one of the highwaymen were killed and another highwayman was seriously wounded. Burgess whipped up the horses and escaped with the money. Later the three men were discovered hiding in a ravine and before they surrendered one of them, Vassil Nicholas, was killed. The two others, Mike Markovitch and Vassel Laketch, were taken to jail, and one day, while waiting for trial, Markovitch hanged himself in his cell. Laketch was convicted and sentenced to be hanged Aug. 8, but was respited on the representation that his father was hastening here from his native home in Montenegro for the purpose of taking farewell of his unhappy son.

Mr. M. A. Ruggles has opened a law office on Court street in rooms formerly occupied by Slattery & Collins where he will be glad to meet his friends and clients. Mr. Ruggles has been practicing at Henderson, Ky., the last two or three years, but was compelled to leave that city on account of his health. The Henderson Gleaner has this to say of him: "The Gleaner a few days since contained the voluntary dissolution notice of the firm of Stanley & Ruggles, attorneys at law. It is understood that Mr. Ruggles contemplates, if he has not positively made up his mind, to return to the home from whence he came to Henderson. The Gleaner regrets this and nothing short of a largely increased benefit to him could induce it from urging his remaining here. During his short sojourn in Henderson, Mr. Ruggles has made a host of warm and worthy friends who will join the Gleaner most sincerely in regretting his departure. He had become one of us, had formed strong ties, was a valued citizen and leader, a popular man and lawyer, a friend worthy and true. For these reasons his departure will be regretted."

The marriage of Miss Mary E. Chambers to Mr. Harry Crawford was quietly solemnized Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock, Rev. Dr. Barbour officiating, the ceremony taking place in the parlors at his home on West Third street in the presence of a few friends. The attendants were Miss Gertrude Tolle and Mr. Joseph Chambers, a brother of the bride. The bride is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. W. Chambers, of Clifton. Her wedding gown of spotless white was in harmony with the pure and lovely Christian character she has always borne. He is an upright and industrious young man, worthy of the good fortune that is his. Their many friends unite in congratulations and good wishes.

ASKS BIG DAMAGES.

Administratrix of Late Peter McCabe Sues the C. and O. and M. and B. S. Railroads For $25,000 For Causing His Death.

A suit was filed in the Mason Circuit Court this morning by the administratrix of the late Peter McCabe, against the M. and B. S. and C. and O. railroad companies asking for $25,000 damages for causing the death of McCabe. A. E. Cole & Son are plaintiff's attorneys.

McCabe while crossing the tracks at Bruce alley and Third street, Fifth ward, one afternoon two weeks ago, was struck by the westbound Huntington accommodation train, receiving injuries that it is claimed caused his death some days later.

The petition alleges that the grant to the railroad by the City Council of the use of Third street was ultra vires, and therefore null and void. In addition to this the allegation is made that the train was running at a greater rate of speed than the charter of the railroad and the ordinances of the city permit, and that the trainmen made no effort to prevent the accident, although they had an unobstructed view of the track on approaching the point.

The case brings up some new points and the decision will be awaited with interest.

Dr. A. G. Browning met with a very painful accident while returning from Cincinnati Wednesday evening on a C. and O. train. The coach window where he was seated was up and his right hand was resting on the sill, when the window suddenly fell, crushing the end of one of his fingers. Dr. Browning was unable to release himself until a fellow-passenger came to his assistance. A few weeks ago the doctor was bitten on the left hand by a spider, and it was only a few days ago he was able to resume the use of that member.

Miss Elizabeth Key, of the county, has been very ill the past week and closed her school in Parry district till October 7.

PITHY POINTS.

Sampson likely will find it harder work to smash Admiral Schley's evidence regarding the latter's victory at Santiago than Schley found it to smash the entire Spanish fleet.

Sampson ought to show as much modesty regarding the subject of Admiral Schley's Santiago victory as a coy maiden is expected to discover in the presence of her lover.

Wonder whether Czolgosz labors under the impression that he might find safety and protection could he only reach Indiana soil?

There needn't be any fear that there shall be anything like the clash between Admiral Schley and Sampson when the latter takes the witness stand as there was when the Spanish fleet attempted to force past Schley's fleet out of Santiago harbor.

As long as Czolgosz doesn't lay any claim to "innocence," we suppose he wouldn't consider the claims of "Inglary" as a place of asylum or retreat for men in his line of business.

"Make Mason a Banner County."

The county of Mason should be a "banner county" for the Kentucky Sunday School Association before January 1, 1902. The following work must be done:

3. Every Magisterial district organized. A district is organized when it holds a convention and elects its officers.
4. A convention in every district.
5. A statistical report, as complete as it is possible to secure.
6. The pledge or apportionment to the State work paid in full.
